Tabula Rasa HealthCare Executives to Present at American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy TechXPO.

Moorestown, NJ, (July 10, 2017) – Tabula Rasa HealthCare (NASDAQ:TRHC), a healthcare technology company optimizing medication safety by deploying new Medication Risk Mitigation™ digital solutions and novel Medication Decision Support tools, will present at TechXPO during the Annual Meeting of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy to be held in Nashville, Tennessee, July 15-19, 2017.

TRHC executives Michael Ristagno, PharmD, MBA, and Rebecca Lewis, PharmD, MBA, will present “How to Empower Student Pharmacists with Technology” focusing on TRHC’s software platform, NiaRx®, which facilitates teaching the cognitive practice of applied pharmacotherapy through case-based learning. NiaRx fosters student-teacher digital collaboration with the goal of educating students to optimize and personalize medication regimens. This cloud-based software program currently is used by colleges of pharmacy in multiple states across the U.S.

“One of the advantages of TRHC is that we were founded by pharmacists. They understand that pharmacy students, who will become practicing pharmacists, need more tools and insight to reduce the burden and costs to our healthcare system from adverse drug events (ADEs),” said Ristagno. “Educating them early about medication risk and how to mitigate it will help reduce ADEs, which in 2016 cost $136 Billion and is the cause of one out of five injuries or deaths per year in the U.S.”

Dr. Rebecca Lewis will focus her segment of the presentation on the actual features and benefits of NiaRx. “We have been told by one of the Clinical Associate Professors of Pharmacy, who is using NiaRx with her students, that 90% of students thought it was easy to use and represents a realistic clinical environment,” said Lewis. “I look forward to sharing our technology with those faculty and students attending the TechXPO.”

The TRHC presentation is scheduled for Sunday, July 16 at 6:20 pm at the Gaylord Opryland Resort & Convention Center. Registration is recommended. Please click on the link to register.
